3. See Lisa Yuskavage: New Paintings

Big steps taken ferociously.

The wild art star of the 1990s, known for her candy-colored voluptuaries with distorted faces and poses, ups her game in a new series of large works. The subject matter is the same, but the impact is more serious, aggressive, and furious. These less-than-fucking-perfect figures may have made wrong turns along the way, but they're weaponized with complexity here. — Jerry Saltz

David Zwirner Gallery, 34 East 69th Street, through December 15.
